

James Godwin

Hello :)

We take borrowed truths to become knowledgeable. But to be knowledgeable is not to know.

INTP personality. Creative, multi-dimensional, energetic, considerate, curious, explorer and adaptable. Like to deeply experience and explore life and inspire others to do the same. An abstract thinker, enjoy looking at the bigger picture. Enjoy learning and committed to acquiring mastery and/or skills. I have an inventive mind that usually generates more possibilities than I can handle or fund.

TECH & DESIGN

I studied both Mechanical Engineering and Graphic Design. Engineering has given me a solid foundation to build a career in technology. Art and design being my passion, has enabled me to understand the user. I've married the two worlds in the businesses and products I've built over the years.

EMPATHY

The skills to work with our minds, our emotions, and other people are essential but rarely developed. I developed an emotional Intelligence training course while at JUMO

My UI/UX Timeline

1992

Camelot, a Macintosh supplier in London. My job was to repair hardware, manage installations, support software and produced all company advertising that was published in MacWorld Magazine.

1993

My experience in London enabled me to start a Macintosh Support company in Cape Town that dealt with companies like Naspers, Associated Magazine and many advertising agencies and SME's.

1999

When the internet arrived many of our clients were in the design and advertising industry. They were commissioned by their clients to build and deploy web sites. Since we did all their IT support that responsibility then fell on us. Started an ISP to deal with the growing demand.

My UI/UX Timeline

2004

After selling Organic Wire, I wanted to pursue contract programming full time. I had a keen interest to furthering my programming skills.

2005

At star120 we built the first USSD and WAP based mobile wallet that serviced over 7 million customers to buy and sell airtime. To top up Wallets, we created the first online debit order processing service that was adopted by many SME's to manage their debit orders.

2011

At imb.co our goal was to build a mobile wallet and in doing that we ended up building a banking system.

My UI/UX Timeline

2013

Building an education system at lobsterink.com to scale. Moving a monolithic application into a micro service architecture. Adopt user centred design.

2014

Responsible for building the JUMO.world money market platform which integrates with MNO's and financial service providers, bringing financial services to MNO customers.

2016

Responsible for the Design Thinking department and oversight of the UI/UX of client projects at stratech.co.za

Recent Work

UI is the saddle, the stirrups, & the reins. UX is the feeling you get being able to ride the horse.

Frank

Dissatisfied current catheter user

Age 29, lives alone, works from home, has been in a wheelchair since age 18.

“I am so frustrated with the lack of communication and support from my current catheter supplier.”

Goals

- Find a new catheter supplier
- Simple process to research, compare, and place an order

Wants / Motivators

- Reliable delivery of catheters
- Strong, proactive communication from supplier
- Get educated on latest catheter technology and product for me

Key Friction Points

The wireframe shows the Numotion homepage with a navigation bar, a hero section featuring a woman in a wheelchair, and a 'REQUEST FREE SAMPLE' button. Below is a 'Why trust us' section with three cards: 'Personalized Solutions', 'Insurance Specialists', and 'Committed to you'. A testimonial section follows, and the footer includes social media links and a newsletter sign-up.

from THE DIGITAL TRANSFORMATION AGENCY

Probes

- If you were going to switch catheter providers, how would you start that process?
 - What terms would you search for?
- What would you expect to see at the navigation links at the top of the screen (About Us, Catheters, Brands, Insurance, Info Center, Contact Us)?
 - What would you want to learn about?
 - What would you most likely click on?
 - How would you order those links?

Observation Points

- Do they ask for a phone number?
- Do they understand the side-scrolling motion of the testimonial area?
- Do they understand how the accordion sections work?

Task 2: Research and Select a Sample Product (15 min)

Now I'd like you to use the site to research, find, and select a product to be sent to your house for a sample. For this exercise, I'd like you to select the Bard brand to research Bard catheter products.

Probes

- How would you start your research process?
- Do you feel like you need to do research or do you already know what product you would like to sample?

If the user clicks on the FREE SAMPLE button, see if they expect to mention a particular product on the form.

The updated homepage features a large image of a woman in a wheelchair with the headline 'The best choice for your intermittent catheter needs.' Below are 'REQUEST FREE SAMPLE' and 'SPEAK TO A REPRESENTATIVE' buttons. A 'Why trust us' section is present with three cards: 'Personalized Solutions', 'Insurance Specialists', and 'Committed to you'. The footer includes social media links and a newsletter sign-up.

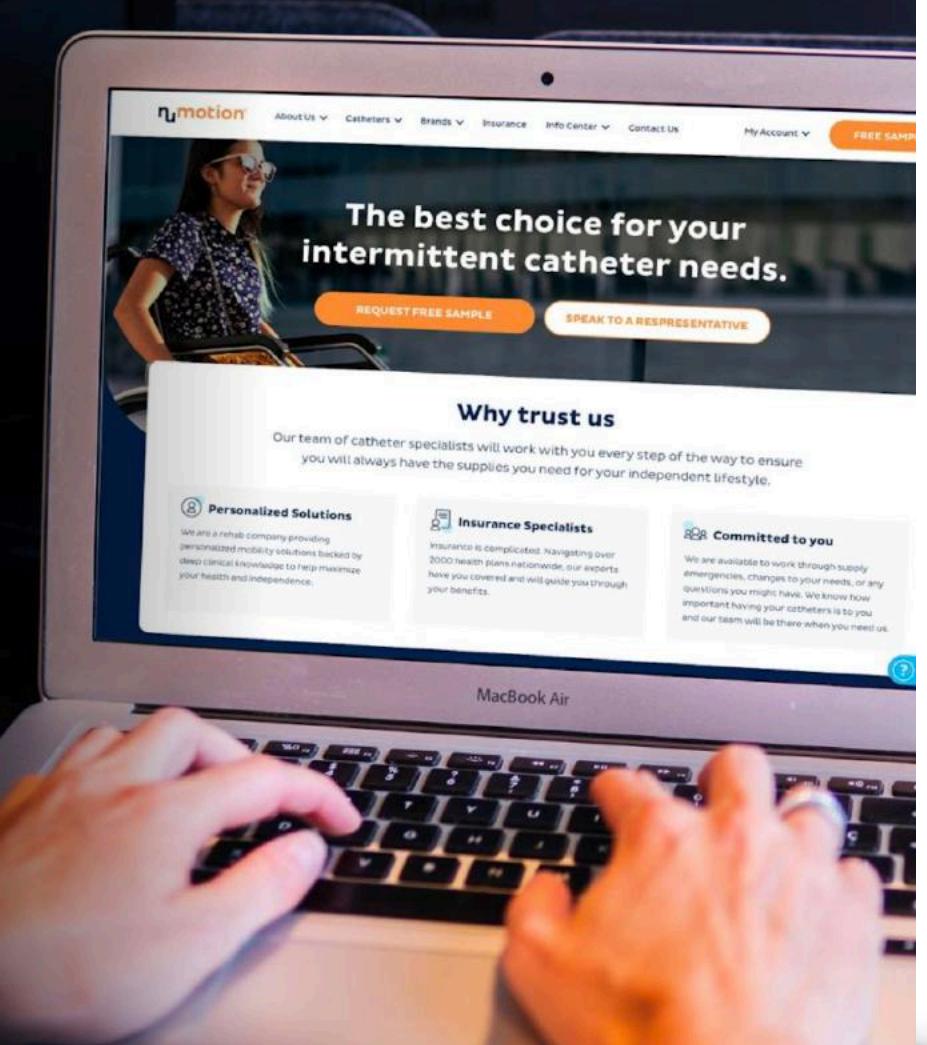

A second screenshot shows a woman in a wheelchair using a laptop, with the Numotion logo and 'FREE SAMPLE' button visible.

Atoms

Atoms represent the smallest entity in UI elements and they can't be broken down any further. Think of them as Lego blocks. They serve as the foundational building blocks of your interface.

General

This section displays the basic building blocks of a user interface, categorized under 'General'. It includes components like checkboxes, radio buttons, switches, and dropdowns, each shown in multiple states (Default, Hover, Active, Disabled, Error). Below these are form fields for various data types, such as text, dates, and numbers, also presented in their respective states.

Molecules

Molecules are groups of atoms bonded together that take on distinct new properties. They form relatively simple UI elements functioning together as a unit.

Grid, Filter Dataset and Misc.

This section illustrates how individual atoms can be combined into more complex molecules. It features a 'Grid Toolbar' with various icons for grid manipulation. Below it is a 'Grid Header' showing a process count of 47709 and a 'System Cancelled' message. A prominent 'Filter Dataset bar' allows for detailed filtering of data, including dropdowns for location ID and date ranges, and a table for setting specific filter criteria like 'Last Well Date' and 'Operator'.
